

App to track performance Data of our representatives

There are many MPs and MLAs in India and by virtue of their elected position, they represent people from their constituency. However, many people might not actually know what their representative is doing in the parliament or the legislative assembly.

With the penetration of mobile phones (both smart phones and feature phones), it is now possible to make this information available to people easily.

We can use the attendance data and performance data (number of questions asked, answers given etc) to build an application that showcases their performance in a format that is easily searchable. This data will give people an understanding of how well their representative is functioning in the parliament or the assembly. This is crucial in strengthening our democracy by making an informed choice while casting our votes.
